

What the Hell is Going on in the NHS?

Wednesday 21st July 2010, Institute of Directors, Pall Mall, London

Roy Lilley

“For someone who made the pre-election promise; There will be no top down changes to the NHS, Andrew Lansley ain’t doin’ too bad!”

So says leading NHS commentator Roy Lilley.

Every part of the NHS is under review or about to change. Find out what it will mean to you and the services you provide.

- How will an NHS without targets know how well it is doing and where it needs to improve? What will it mean for patients? Is this throwing the baby out with the bath water.
- Strategic Health Authorities are set to disappear – how will they and their functions be replaced?
- A new Commissioning Board is to be set up – what will it do?
- Will PCT numbers be reduced by half - what’s the impact?
- The Department of Health is changing its functions. What will it do and will its new ‘Public Health Role’ deliver results?
- GPs are now set to form commissioning consortia. How will they work, what size will they be, who’s in charge?
- How many will there be. Does size matter?
- What will they do and who will run them?
- Do the Commercial Support Units still have a future?
- Is this the end of World Class Commissioning, are there any lessons in the debris?
- Will the NHS be able to cut £20bn from its budget and protect front-line care?

- Local authorities will have a big say on who sits on PCT Boards and, along with GPs, whether or not the NHS can change services – how will this impact on reconfiguration?

Leaders from primary and secondary care and policy analysts will take you through the landscape of the new NHS and point out the new direction of travel.

Understanding the new complexities of the NHS is vital for everyone.

- How will primary care change?
- How will secondary care respond?
- What is the future of the Foundation Trust?
- What will the new ‘value based pricing’ mean for Pharma?
